Dear Mike,

I can not thank you enough for your visit to Temple University's campus this week. Your "Can I Kiss You?" program was entertaining, enlightening, and inspiring. Due to the presentation, many critical discussions have been generated between our Residence Hall students, as well as University administrators. We are very excited about the potential this presentation has brought to our campus.

More specifically, the Resident Assistants who attend your session had nothing but praise to offer toward you. One student said to me "as a third-year Resident Assistant, that was the best in-service we have ever had." Though the information was, in part, much of what we train on, you managed to make the material fresh and insightful. In addition, your courage to share very personal experiences touched students in a deeper way than many other presentations on similar topics.

Additionally, your train-the-trainer session opened the door for our department to begin dialogue in a fresh direction as to how we support survivors of sexual assault and what should be the specific training our student staff should have regarding peer support in this area. These are often difficult discussion to approach, but we were armed with a different set of tools as a result of the information you shared.

The information you shared was incredible. The manner in which it was presented was new and refreshing. Thank you for taking the time to be with us, and we definitely look forward to having you visit our campus again in the near future.

Keep up the amazing work. College students and the administrators who serve them need to know the information you can provide.

Sincerely,
